Overall it looks very nice, I love how you brought in a desaturated image of the celebrity on the main page- works really nice with the green and light grey background! I did think that the light grey background could maybe be a gradient of light grey and some other color (maybe black, darker grey, or lighter grey/white) just to make things a bit more interesting.

On the Discography page, I suggest that the video is made larger, especially horizontally! I feel like the little square size of video is a bit odd and could definitely take up more space! I also thought that it would be nice if there is little annotation about what song it is under the video. (ex.) Caffeine, the main title song to his first debut album as a solo, has marked him as a successful individual artist. (Or sth like this)

Lastly, I feel like there could be more bottom margin at the end of the page! The words feel a bit too close to the footer! And I think the album/song names should be italicized and the group name Highlight/Beast should be emphasized!
